5000 GUARDSMEN AT CAMP GRAYLING

UNDERGOING INTENSIVE PROGRAM OF TRAINING

Approximately 5000 troops of Michigan National Guard are now undergoing the most intensive training ever planned for a two-week summer encampment.

The training schedule includes tactical problems, target practice with rifles, machine guns and artillery, close order drill, lectures and special instructions for officers.

The 182d Field Artillery regiment under command of Col. H. A. Pickert, was the first complete regiment to reach camp and immediately started in to complete their preliminary problems. Today (Thursday) this regiment starts a two-day live-shell target practice. With field pieces set among the forests and hills on the west side of the lake, targets will be set in "Pleasant Valley," in Kalkaska county, about five miles distant. The firing ranges are worked out meticulously. In this they will be assisted by the 32d Division air squadron, under command of Major Evans. Reports of shots will be made by broadcasting from the airplanes. Next week the air service will work with the 110th Field Artillery.

Next Sunday will be a general review of the entire National Guard units. This usually begins at 2:00 p. m. Eastern Standard time. This is the big day in camp for the public and is an attraction that is attended by upwards of 50,000 people, many coming from remote regions of the state.

Next Monday all units except the 182d Field Artillery which contains for home that night, will march into the heart of the big military reservation, go into position, bivouac for the night and attack the "enemy" the following morning. This will be the culmination of the war training, a vigorous assignment that will recompense the guardsmen for the exciting routine they have been thru.

The weather thus far has been ideal. Every one in camp seems to be enjoying the training and the pleasures afforded by the fine lake. Nearly all enjoy the swimming, some fish bass and pike and some enjoy the wildernesses that surround the west and north sides. Baseball, wrestling and boxing matches, motion pictures, mock trials and pranks of wide diversion are daily enjoyed by the young men in camp. And the many fine military bands of the camp inspire all with their music. And the latter are always liberal and willing to come to town to entertain those who are not able to hear them at the camp. And other towns—Roscommon, Frederic and Gaylord—are treated to fine band concerts by these bands. Last night the 107th Medical Regiment band played a concert and furnished music for a pavement dance in Grayling. A more detailed account of this fine band, which for the fifth consecutive time has captured first place amongst the bands attending this annual encampment, appears elsewhere in this edition of the Avalanche.

The people of Grayling are appreciative of the concerts so generously provided by the military bands, and in their behalf we wish to extend the most cordial thanks of the entire community.

WHO IS GOING TO BE MISS GRAYLING

Officials of the first annual Eastern Michigan Water Carnival, to be held at Bay City August 22, 23 and 24, are desirous of finding out, so that this young lady, whoever she may be, can enjoy three days at the carnival without expense and compete for the honor of being named queen of the carnival.

Voting coupons on which patrons of the Kialto theatre can write in their choice for Miss Grayling will be sent to the theatre this week so the contest can get under way at once. It will continue until August 15, when the girl having the largest number of votes to her credit will be named Miss Grayling.

The following week she will be sent to Bay City and on August 22 will compete with the other girls from the various towns in the community in an effort to be named queen of the carnival. A three-day round of pleasure will follow.

The carnival will open on August 22 with a mammoth street parade of beautifully decorated and novel floats, including several from towns outside of Bay City, and will end with a water pageant which will see every available boat of any description in a beautiful water parade on Saginaw river, with the queen presiding over it all.

T. W. Hanson, president of the Grayling Chamber of Commerce, has named a local committee to have charge of arrangements for the carnival in this city. Besides himself the committee consists of A. J. Joseph, T. P. Peterson, Fred Welsh, Chris Olsen, C. J. McNamara, Carl W. Peterson, O. P. Schumann, Dr. C. R. Keyport and George Olson.

Among the young ladies who have already entered in the local beauty contest are Miss Virginia Hanson, and the Misses Margrethe and Ella Hanson. Others are expected to enter within the next few days and voting promises to be keen until the end of the contest on August 15.

MUCH TESTIMONY IN WOOD CASE

The will case of Mary J. Wood, appealed from probate court that is being tried here in circuit court before Judge Guy E. Smith, with Wm. F. Austin et al, contestants and Albert B. Lincoln, proponent closed their testimony for the appellants Tuesday after more than a week of trial. Testimony for the proponent began Wednesday. Attorneys for both sides believe the case will require another week in court.

Mary J. Wood was the wife of William E. Wood of Wm. E. Wood Construction Company, Detroit and left an estate of about seven hundred fifty thousand dollars. One will of Mrs. Wood was found in her private deposit box at People's State Bank Detroit and filed in probate court here. This left an annuity of $300 a month to her brother Albert B. Lincoln, and Mrs. Huston of Rochester, Mich., $100 per month and the remainder of her property to Wm. F. Austin, Henry Brennan and Leo Richmond, members of the firm of Wm. E. Wood Construction Co., and some personal property to Mr. Brennan's wife.

This was filed in probate court of Crawford county. Later Albert B. Lincoln the proponent in the case filed a will which he claimed was a later and the last will of Mrs. Wood. This will bequeathed all the property to Mr. Lincoln and his sister Mrs. Huston.

Mrs. Wood died in California Sept. 30, 1928. Mr. Lincoln petitioned the court to appoint Wm. F. Austin, secretary-treasurer of the Wm. E. Wood Construction Co., special administrator for the purpose, he says, of permitting the contents of Mrs. Wood's private deposit box in the People's State Bank in Detroit to be examined. Later, October 27th, Mr. Lincoln deposited the will that is now being contested and which the appellants claim is a forgery.

The trial has been a long, drawn out one in which 184 letters and manuscripts have been received in evidence.

The appellants are represented by the law firm of Stevenson, Butzel, Eaman & Long, and David Crowley of Monahan & Crowley, all of Detroit. The proponents have retained Lodge & Brown, also of Detroit, as their attorneys.

Principal among the witnesses to appear for the appellants were a number of handwriting experts—Albert S. Osborn and Elbridge W. Stein of New York and Francis B. Courtney and J. E. Murphy of Detroit. All of these witnesses claim that the so-called last will and testament is a forgery.

In the private deposit box of Mrs. Wood was found a letter addressed to Wm. F. Austin directing him as to the funeral arrangements she desired at her death. The funeral was conducted from the Austin home.

Thus far nothing has developed as to where the contested will was found. It is claimed by a Mrs. Paul of Detroit that Mrs. Wood had, on August 23rd last, just before leaving for California, where she died September 30th, asked her mother to come to her rooms at the Leland hotel in Detroit, when she requested that she write her will at her (Mrs. Wood's) dictation. Mrs. Paul states that she did this and that she and her mother, Mrs. Bennett Brown, signed as witnesses. This will, as before explained, left all to Mr. Lincoln and Mrs. Huston, Mrs. Wood's brother and sister.

Witnesses for the Lincoln side are now having their day in court and will endeavor to prove the validity of the last filed will.

HERE COMES ARABELLA JULY 23-24

The rehearsing for "Here Comes Arabella" a musical comedy which is being presented by the Woman's Club is well under way. Appointments for the various members of the cast were completed Monday and strenuous practicing began. The spirit and enthusiasm of the actors for their parts gave assurance that the play will go over with plenty of snap.

Arthur Sutton of Higgins Lake has been chosen as leading man. He is a young man experienced in dramas who made a name for himself in the Michigan opera and plays the role of Bob Adair superbly. Arabella, the charming gypsy lady, who wins Bob without any effort but against strong competition is Virginia Hanson, Virginia is well known here and played the lead in "Curly Sue" presented by the Latin Six, Chicago. It goes without saying that she is handling her part beautifully. These stars are supported by Bob Monague of Higgins Lake, who plays Bob's roommate a student playwright, Kristine Salling and Eleanor Schumann who are the old maid aunts, Charles Wyle as Uncle Josh, Martha Hanson, Ella Hanson, and Norma Pochelon who are the Supper-Wait-Pochelon and Julius Pochelon, friends of Bob's and Dorothy May, Norel Schmidt and Emma Louise, backstage members of the Ladies Aid.

The theme in "Here Comes Arabella" is rather unusual as it isn't the dapper with a hot pen and dangle who wins out but rather the cheerful little girl, who is straight to the heart of all with whom she comes in contact. But what difficulties they have with the mysterious "Robin Redbreast" always in the background, reminding Arabella's love. However it ends, as all good plays do, with everyone living happily ever after.

PARTY OF FIVE LOST IN WOODS

Narrowly escaping death from exposure and severely bruised, five early arrivals at Camp Grayling were rescued early Friday morning after their horses had carried them almost twenty miles into the pine woods north of the military reservation. Lieutenant and Mrs. George Kelly, Flint; Mrs. F. T. Burt, Lansing and Miss Elizabeth Coshaw, of Lansing, the unfortunate group, are still suffering from their experience.

Leaving camp for a moonlight horseback ride, at about 8 o'clock in the evening, they became hopelessly lost and spent the following seven hours trying to find their way out of the dense pine growth. Search parties recruited from the camp were, in the meantime, scouring the country for miles around and finally located the riders near a fire which they had built to attract attention.

The heroes in the affair were Captain L. A. McKenny, of Detroit, and 1st Lieut. William H. Crampton, also of Detroit. These officers, both of whom are rather widely known as nature students, were taking flashlight photographs of small wild animals when the alarm was heard and searched for 14 hours without rest.

Anyone caught taking ice or trespassing on my icehouse property will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

The last party who helped himself, left his ice tongs and took mine instead, and it would be appreciated if they were returned.

AVIATION SQUADRON ARRIVED SATURDAY

With a personnel of nearly 100 men and officers the 32d Aviation Squadron of airplanes arrived at Grayling Airport Saturday afternoon, under command of Major Floyd E. Evans. In the squadron were seven T-11 planes and two Douglas observation planes and on Tuesday, the third Douglas observation plane, arrived direct from the factory in Los Angeles.

While here the squadron will do a lot of photographic work and also work with the artillery at Camp Grayling spotting shots and signaling the results of the shots.

Grayling Airport has been greatly enlarged since last season, and telephone and electric lines have been removed and lowered and now the field is large enough to land any army plane now in existence.

Among the officers at the airport are the following:

Major Floyd E. Evans, commander observation squadron.

Capt. Norwick, commander medical attachment.

Capt. Howard M. Emhoff.

Capt. Leon M. Lindsey.

Capt. A. C. Mensch.

1st Lieut. Andrew H. Coleman.

1st Lieut. James P. O'Neil.

1st Lieut. Raymond C. DesAutels.

1st Lieut. Walter C. Walsh.

2nd Lieut. John C. Walsh.

2nd Lieut. Clinton E. Searle.

3rd Lieut. Barr states that next Sunday after the general review at Camp Grayling there probably will be an exhibition of parachute drops.

Each of the Douglas observation planes contains radio apparatus, a machine gun and photographic apparatus.

Pilots are busy putting in the required hours of flying. Before camp is closed each of the 12 pilots will have spent 20 hours in the air. Lieut. James Kabon, commanding the photographic section, and his men plan to map the military reservation from the air.

A club house, an operations building and a storehouse are being built at the air service camp with lumber from abandoned buildings at River Rouge Park. With the growth of the air service to 51 men and 15 officers, and the enlargement of its material, the newest branch of the Michigan National Guard has within a few years become an outstanding unit.

Wednesday morning ten Curtiss planes and one Douglas bombing plane from Selfridge field, under command of Captain Strubbe, arrived at the airport. It was an inspiring sight to see these planes flying in formation sets of threes, and the roar of their motors as they flew low over town made everyone who could, get out and look.

At almost any time planes may be seen in the air going thru the most thrilling and dare-devil stunts. With motor cut off sometimes the planes start down in tailspins and other times fall gracefully much as a light maple leaf may fall thru open space. Of course the plane is righted at the proper time to avoid a crash.

Rube Babbitt accompanied us to the airport Wednesday morning and told of a time when he went up in a plane and the pilot gave him all he knew how to give. "Gosh," said Mr. Babbitt, "I got sometimes that my guts would burst right out of my ears. I was never so sick in all my life. I told the pilot, after he cut off his motor, preparatory to land, that I was sick and he replied 'you don't look very well.' He was having more fun about my experience than I was."

One cup of rice will absorb 3 or 4 cups of milk when cooked in the double boiler and is of course much richer in food value than when boiled in water.

MEDICAL REGT. GIVES FINE CONCERT

ONE OF GUARDS' BEST MUSICAL ORGANIZATIONS

The 107th Medical Regiment Band of the Michigan National Guard is in camp again this year with a fine band then ever. This organization under its popular young leader, Warrent Officer Laurie Heathcote, has for the fifth successive encampment again taken first place amongst the bands attending the annual encampment.

The twenty-three piece instrumentation of this band might be of interest to local musicians. The section carries six clarinets and one piccolo and flute with the brasses covering four trumpets, three mellophones, two baritone, two trombones and two basses. The percussion section claims one bass drummer, two snare drummers with bells and xylophones. Staff Sergeant Art Clarke, the amiable assistant band leader, has been with the band since its organization five years ago.

Besides being a fine concert ensemble this band has the reputation of standing alone in its providing varied entertainment for the troops' return at your earliest convenience. This year's special features and receive check for principal and include Bob Brown and Herb Atkins, trumpet soloists, Hal D. Dated July 1st, 1929.

Hanson, versatile trombonist. Or Moyer with his stories of the South African deserts, Jack Cheney, clever eccentric dancer, Oscar Lundburgh with his one armed piccolo act (featured in many Detroit theaters), Earl Curtiss, premier xylophonist and percussion manipulator and last, but not least, Laurie Heathcote with his golden voice.

On Wednesday evening the band came into town and treated our good citizens to a concert after which followed a pavement dance. This was the first pavement dance ever recorded in the history of Grayling and it is hoped that it can be made an annual affair.

On Friday evening, July 19th, the boys are playing and entertaining at the annual dance of the 107th Medical at the High School Auditorium and a special invitation is extended to the ladies of the community to be present without any admission fee. There will be many novelties presented and a fine time is assured all those who attend.

On Monday evening next a concert and street dance will be held at Grayling when it is hoped that many of their Grayling friends will attend and add to the enjoyment. The band is already booked for every evening during the encampment and on some of these evening dates have two engagements.

IN THE death of Judge Grant Fellows, Justice of Michigan Supreme court, Tuesday, our state loses one of its most able jurists. Not only was Judge Fellows well informed in law and of sound, sensible judgment but he was also a man of fairness. He detested pettiness, bigotry and selfishness. While small in stature he was masterful as a lawyer and judge.
As a speaker he swayed large audiences with his eloquence and logic, and was held in high esteem by his colleagues. At all times he was a power to be reckoned with. Yet notwithstanding his lofty position in life he always had time for his old home friends. It made no difference to Grant Fellows whether or not Farmer Jones wore his overalls when he called at his office in Lansing.
Judge Fellows was always glad to see him, and he never forgot to inquire how the wife and family at home were. An unkindly word about any one of his friends, whether deserved or not, was always met with a frown, and petty gossip was unwelcome in his presence. He was generous and thoughtful. He was responsible for the success of a number of young men, some of whom are now well known today in Michigan. Judge Fellows was a liberal contributor to the churches and other institutions of his home city—Hudson, a town
that he loved and where he was loved by almost everyone there. He was a citizen of whom the home town folk were proud to boast. His usefulness to his home community, his state and his country won for him friends who will hold his memory in reverence as long as they live.

SEVEN MISTAKES OF LIFE

An Exchange lists the following as
seven mistakes of life:

1. The delusion that individual advancement is made by crushing others down.
2. The tendency to worry about things that cannot be changed or corrected.
3. Insisting that a thing is impossible because we ourselves cannot accomplish it.
4. Attempting to compel other persons to believe and live as we do.
5. Neglecting development and refinement of the mind by not acquiring the habit of reading fine literature.
6. Refusing to set aside trivial preferences in order that important things may be accomplished.
7. The failure to establish the habit of saving money.

petizing punch, combined with other fruit juices, lemon, and gingerale.

$5000 FIRE LOSS BAKERY & GARAGE

BROKE OUT 11:30 WED. NIGHT
FIREMEN STOP SPREAD

What might have been a serious
fire broke out in the building used as a garage by the Grayling Bakery
at about 11:30 o'clock Wednesday night, completely destroying that structure and spread to the rear room of the Corwin Auto Sales garage.

Just how the conflagration started seems to be uncertain. The bakery delivery truck belonging to Mr. Craig, the proprietor, was in the bakery garage with the gas tank full and it is the belief that someone was robbing the tank. The car was totally consumed but for its metal parts and there seemed to have been no gas explosion, which partly confirms that the gas had been removed.

The fire started almost in an instant for people passing by a few minutes before it was discovered saw no fire and this looks as tho it might have been a gasoline fire.

The fire raged furiously in just a few minutes and it looked as tho the main bakery building and the Corwin Auto Sales garage would be wiped out, and also other nearby structures including the Cooley Economy store, the American Legion hall, Alexander's office, Conline store, Peterson
Jewelry store and Avalanche office.
Fortunately there was no wind and the few sparks that were carried away were easily controlled. As it was the fire was confined to the place where it began and the Corwin garage. The latter place was damaged in the rear part, the interior of one side and the ceiling and roof being badly gutted. Their loss is estimated at about $2,000. The bakery loss it is believed will amount to around $1,000. Besides that the loss of their fine new Stewart enclosed delivery truck is about $2,000. The buildings and truck were insured sufficiently so that the owners will suffer no financial loss. The contents losses of the two places, on which there was no insurance, are small.

RESERVE OFFICER WRITES ABOUT HIS COMPANY

To the newcomer, Camp Grayling is a pleasant surprise. The lake, with its wooded shores and the rolling terrain, furnish a beautiful setting for the tent city and is in marked contrast with the usual army camp.
As reserve officers, some of us are particularly fortunate in being assigned to the 107th Ordnance Co. of Pontiac, commanded by Capt. Claude
L. Allen.

This organization is unique in many ways. The casual visitor is immediately impressed with the appearance of the Company street, a miniature white way extends the entire length of the street, formed by a line of boulevard lights. On top of the mess hall is a large "oneon"
sign in colors in the form of a flaming bomb; the Ordnance insignia, with the Company number displayed in the bomb. A similar sign is at the lower end of the street, while on the back side of the mess hall and facing the squad tents is a large clock. The squad tents also have their special framework. A rather ingenious framework takes the place of the usual center pole; a system of springs in the top of the tent automatically takes up any slack in the tent ropes.
Electric lights with white globes to match the outside lights are provided. A rack containing the names of the occupants, in black print on a white background, stands before each tent.

Even the mess hall has its special comforts, as exemplified by an ice box large enough to hold a beef. Outside the mess hall is a drinking fountain and the water, instead of being chlorinated as customary, is boiled in a special apparatus by which the water, after boiling is led thru the icebox for cooling, thus providing safe and palatable drinking water
at all times.

The real significance, however, of these special features lies in the spirit they reflect. One cannot help but be impressed by the spirit of cooperation and good will which exists in the company as between the officers and men and the evident desire of the men to do their utmost to make the all too brief period of camp a productive one. Captain Allen and Mr. Martin are to be congratulated.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wolf and two children of South Bend, Indiana, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert W. Wolf at their cottage.

Local Happenings

Miss Helen Nelson of East Tawas
is visiting her sister, Mrs. William Nelson for a couple of weeks, arriving Monday.

Rev. Aage Moller of Ashland High School, Grant, Michigan, who was to have filled the pulpit at Danish-Lutheran church next Sunday has postponed his date until a week later,
and will be here on Sunday, July 28th.
Therefore there will be no services
in the church next Sunday, but Sunday school will be at the usual hour.

Misses Margrethe and Olga Nelson are entertaining a number of guests this week at a house party at their cottage Mar-O-To at Lake Margrethe.
They include the Misses Margaret
Hendricks of Grand Lodge, Jaunita Secord, East Jordan; Marion Estabrook, Grand Rapids; Louise Hain-line, Dearborn; and Hazel Shankel of Alma. All were former teachers in Grayling schools.

The stage is all set for St. Mary's annual fair, with some of the attractions on the lawn at Mrs. Charles Tromble's home and others on the lot between the A. & P. Store and the 5c to $1 Store. At the home of Mrs.
Tromble the fancy work, baby booth
and fish pond, candy, baked goods,
ice cream and pop booths will be arranged, and here also will be tables
where ice cream and cake, sandwiches and coffee and other refreshments will be served all afternoon and evening.
In connection with the attractions on main street will be a hot dog stand.
In the fancy work booth may be found pillow slips, towels and aprons, all home made and of the best of materials. Baby things are always in vogue and the fish pond will make a hit with the kiddies. In the baked goods booth will be found home made pies, cakes and other things. Join the big crowd that always takes in St.
Mary's fair.

ADOPT MODERN CULINARY ART

SCIENTIFIC MENUS PREPARED FOR 634 BRIGADE OFFICERS

The old story of distasteful and un-nutritious army food is now quite dead. With the modern methods of choosing and planning the messes.
The menus for the 634th Brigade Headquarters Mess during the summer encampment was carefully made out many weeks ahead of time. They were corrected and approved by the M. S. C. Home Ec. Dept. Taken into consideration were the type of man to whom they were to be served and the sort of work which he would be doing. For instance as most of the men are large they have out-proteins to some extent. We find on certain days a substitute for the usually infallible potatoes. And thus they have arrived at a diet which should be of the most possible benefit to the individual. The menus for last Sunday and Monday were:

Bacon and eggs	Toast	Fresh green peas	Bread and butter	Fresh berries

LADIES AID GIVE BRIDGE LUNCHEON

The Music Box was the attractive setting for a very delightful luncheon given by the Ladies Aid of Michelson Memorial church Wednesday afternoon. A profusion of garden flowers in tall baskets placed around the room, which was filled with small tables at which the guests were served, added gracefulness to the occasion.

Bridge and golf followed the luncheon. High and low scores for bridge were held by Mrs. Alger and Mrs.
Pepper who are visiting at the reservation.

The following committees were responsible for the success of the luncheon: Mrs. H. A. Bauman, chairman;
Mrs. Fred Welsh, assistant chairman;
Mrs. C. R. Keyport, decorations; Mrs.
Babson Hanson, bridges; Mrs. A. J.
Joseph, golf; Mrs. Olaf Michelson,
Mrs. Herbert Wolff, Mrs. Carl Mick-elson and Mrs. Oscar Hanson, reception.

Inside Information

Get into the habit of closing up the sewing machine when you stop work for the day. A little dust can undo all your efforts at cleaning up your machine and making it run easily.
Unnoticed dust also gets on light
colored work, to its detriment.

Bread for sandwiches should be 24 hours old. It should be cut in thin slices, and preferably filled with a chopped filling. If the filling is soft and likely to soak through, butter both slices; otherwise the butter may sometimes be mixed with the filling and the spreading may be done in one operation. Cream the butter until soft enough to spread, but do not melt it as the flavor will be changed.

A pair of kitchen shears with sanitary white handles and strong, sharp blades is a useful tool. It can be used for chopping celery, apples and pickles for salad, also chicken and other meats; for cutting the heads and tails from fish; for cutting lettuce for shredded salads, bread for stuffing, marshmallows, dates and nuts, for desserts. Then there are all the ordinary uses for scissors to cut paper for lining cake tins, twine on packages, shelf paper, and many other uses.

The Care of Your Money

HOW TO SELECT A SECURITY
Just as the merchant must analyze the value of every product he buys, so must every investor be in a position to analyze and compare intelligently the various securities
which are offered him.

What should one look for in a good bond? What are the characteristics of a good investment? According to an authority, Prof. Lawrence Chamberlain, they are:

1. Security of Principal
2. Stability of Income
3. Fair Income Return
4. Marketability
5. Value as Collateral
6. Tax Exemption
7. Exemption from Care
8. Acceptable Denomination
9. Acceptable Duration
10. Potential Appreciation

Ten Investment Characteristics

An investment that will measure up to each of these standards is well-nigh perfect. But no security has a maximum of every characteristic so listed.

Take the new Treasury 3 1/2% recently offered to the public. Even such a premier security does not check the full 10% in each of Chamberlain's features.

But it is not essential that all the characteristics be present in an equal degree in any one bond. It is logical they should be. For example, absolute security of principle almost precludes the possibility of appreciating value.

It is up to the investor to determine what his essential needs are and then seek the bond in which the qualities are most prominent which meet his requirements.

With the exception of the first two items on Chamberlain's list, all the other characteristics are open to consideration. Security of principal and stability of income are indispensable to the conservative investor. But fair income return, marketability, collateral value and the rest are requirements that can be determined only by the individual circumstances.

A man and a woman, a physician
and a merchant, have different requirements. The investment suited to an active business man may be unsuitable for a retired business man. And so on through the various classes of bond buyers. It is a personal problem.

BOYS' STATE FAIR SCHOOL

Organization of the 1200 alumni of the Boys' State Fair School, numbering some of the most successful farmers in Michigan, will be undertaken at the eightieth annual exposition of the Michigan State Fair, Sept. 1 to 7. The school, established 15 years ago as an agricultural educational proposition, is made up of country winners of an annual state-wide agricultural contest. Selection of this year's students took place late in June.

The attempt in September will be the first to organize an alumni association. Invitations to attend are being sent to all former students. A huge tent will be pitched on the grounds to house the organization program. Annual meetings are planned.

The Boys' State Fair School is a prominent educational feature of the State Fair. Entrants in the annual contest which determines its students are selected mainly for their knowledge of farming, though any boy of good eighth grade standing is eligible. The test, however, is such that no boy not carefully prepared can enter and have a fair chance of victory. Previous winners are barred. The examination in each county is under the supervision of the school commissioner. At the fair the boys, with all traveling and other expenses paid, are housed and fed on the grounds, and given an intensive agricultural course and daily physical exercises under qualified instructors. Admission to all entertainment at the fair is free and the boys are taken on motor trips around Detroit.

The interest in both agriculture and the state fair aroused by these contests and selections has been so great, fair officials report, that many of the boys have become annual visitors to the fair, which promotes the organization of an alumni association.

U. S. CLIMBS ON "MILK CART" INSTEAD OF ON "WATER WAGON"

Millions of people have come to realize that "milk" is a wonderful "juice" and instead of jumping on the "water wagon" since prohibition, they have leaped aboard the "milk cart". The stability of the cow is shown in a survey of the dairy situation, just completed by the Blue Valley Creamery Institute of Chicago.

The cow sticks to her job year after year, as the cow population census shows. This is in direct contrast to the human farm population, as the records show that in the past nine years there are 3,500,000 fewer people on farms and the present cow population is within about 5,000,000 of the human population on the farms of the country, the Institute points out. The number of cows keeps close to the 22,000,000 mark every year, while the human population on farms is now only 27,000,000 as compared to 31,000,000 in 1920.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Center of Streams Swifter

Water along the sides of a stream is retarded constantly by rubbing against the banks. The water just a little farther out is retarded less because it touches only the slower moving water. So out in the middle of the stream the current is swiftest because water develops less friction from the adjacent water than it does from a stationary mass.

ST. MARY'S ACADEMY YIELDS TO THE MARCH OF PROGRESS.

Crowbars are writing the final chapter in the life of old St. Mary's Academy, noted Canadian shrine being demolished to make room for the Detroit and Canada Tunnel.

For 65 years St. Mary's has been an important unit in the educational and religious life of the Border Cities. Now wreckers have attacked its old ivy-covered walls and sent them tumbling down in a mass of brick and mortar. In a few short weeks historic St. Mary's will be only a memory. But there are compensations.

Sixty-five years ago, when Vital Ouellette and his wife donated the land for the first building, the site was on the extreme outskirts of the straggling village of Windsor. Prodigious growth has come to the Border Cities since, growth so spectacular that this area is acclaimed as the most progressive in North America. The site of St. Mary's now is in the heart of a bustling business center, much too busy and too valuable to justify its further use for educational purposes.

Thus quiet old St. Mary's is being torn down, doomed by the march of progress. In its stead will arise the towering portal of a great international vehicular tunnel and the various terminal structures needed for the administration of the project.

And St. Mary's itself is not to perish. Rather, the institution is to be preserved in even greater glory on a new site in South Windsor. There a $1,000,000 modern structure has been erected and thither will be removed many of the ancient effects of the older academy.

Among the many priceless relics being removed are a magnificent marble altar—one of the finest in Ontario; several religious paintings; the stained glass windows of the chapel and an antique clock which stages a parade of altar boys across the face every hour. The windows are outstanding among Canadian ecclesiastical shrines and long were a mecca for Border Cities visitors.

St. Mary's was founded by the Catholic citizens of Windsor in 1865, in a little brick cottage which still stands on Goyeau street. A petition for help was addressed to the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary in Montreal and four teachers were sent.

In 1870 the first annex was built, an artistic affair circular in form. Further extension was made in 1904. In 1920 a kindergarten and science laboratories were built, followed four years later by the main annex, a pretentious four-story brick building which may be preserved intact from the wreckage for use by the Windsor Salvation Army. The Army desires to use the annex as a hotel for men if it proves feasible to move it intact from its present location to the new site available.

So far as is known, only two members of the original graduating class of 1868 survive. They are Mrs. Genevieve Langlelois Drouillard, of Windsor, and Miss Catherine Panning, of Cleveland, now Sister Gonzales of the mother home of the order of Outremont.

Location of the tunnel terminal on the St. Mary's site will bring the city halls of Detroit and Windsor within three minutes of each other, according to tunnel officials. The American terminal for the tunnel is but a few hundred feet from Detroit's financial and shopping districts and the Canadian terminal is even nearer to the vital centers.

The tunnel will be approximately a mile long, from portal to portal, with one half of its length under water. It will cost approximately $25,000,000 and is scheduled for completion late next year.

Trade Board Big Factor in Chicago's Progress

The jobs of 80,000 men and women are directly dependent on the existence of the Chicago Board of Trade; 100,000 are employed indirectly because of the "world's largest" commodity exchange. These figures indicate the important part the board has taken in building Chicago into the fifth city of the world and the financial and marketing center of the Middle West.

Early in 1948 a small group of influential leaders, engaged in pulling Chicago out of the mud that was old Fort Dearborn, organized the board of trade. Memberships in those days could be bought for a comparatively few dollars. Today the total value of memberships, at a conservative estimate, is $50,000,000.

In the old days, tolling wagonloads of wheat and corn arrived from across the prairies in Chicago and were promptly sold at the exchange. Long before the end of the board's eighty-first year, Chicago was the railroad center of the world and farm products moved to market in modern style. It is estimated that one-seventh of all the revenue of midwestern railroads now is derived from the transport of farm crops to market. A great part of their shipments go to Chicago for sale on the exchange.

Thinks He Has Special Reason for Complaint

The driver of a small car, parked in a crowded downtown section, stopped short and stared at the apparent nakedness of the machine. The spare tire was missing.

With a nonchalant shrug, he muttered something about "thieves will be thieves" and began to climb into the machine. But he stopped short again and stooped to pick up a wrench from the running board. His face grew crimson, and the things he said were terms not generally employed by frequenters of social teas.

"What's the trouble?" asked the Stroller.

"A lot," he snapped. "I don't mind these crooks stealing my tire, but when they open my car and take my tools to do it with, that's too much!"—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Protect Guinea Birds

Shipowners are carefully guarding their fowls, disturbing the guinea birds nesting on the islands off the coast of Peru, are punished with a fine; and if it is discovered that their vessels approached within two miles of the islands, their boats are confiscated.

This new law was passed by the Peruvian government in a drastic campaign to protect the birds, which, as described in Popular Science Monthly, produce large quantities of guano, an excellent fertilizer. While guano is found in various places, the most valuable variety—containing 13 to 14 per cent nitrogen and a like proportion of phosphoric acid—is exported from the Chincha and other islands near the Peruvian coast. These islands produce $1,000,000 worth of the fertilizer a year.

Gems His Playthings

Many, varied, and strange are the belongings kept in safe depositories. During the recent visit to England of the ruler of a semi-independent Indian state a score or more of gorgeously apurated retainers visited the premises of one company every day to collect three heavy chests filled with cut and uncut precious stones. These were taken away for the dusty potteries to play with, and returned to the vaults when he tired of his daily amusements. The jewels were said to be worth over $100,000,000 and were probably the most valuable collection ever stored at one time.

Cable Insulation

One can hardly see any connection between hoop skirts and the electrical industry, but one may be traced, strangely enough, which took place in the early days of the electrical development. The first cables were not insulated satisfactorily. At Windsor, Ontario, an Englishman, who headed steel hoops with cotton, had an inspiration. Crinolines were going out, so was his business. So he used his machinery for insulating copper wire with cotton braid, and he soon had no cause to regret the passing of the crinoline.

Turkeys Bred by Aztecs

Although the earliest authentic record of the turkey refers to its introduction into Spain by a French writer, says turkeys were first brought to France in 1518. When the Spaniards conquered Mexico they found semi-domesticated turkeys in the zoological parks of the Aztecs, he writes. Among the Pueblo Indians of the Southwest turkeys were raised before the coming of the Spaniards and these fowls had reached about the same degree of domestication that pigeons have today.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Konjola Routes Rheumatism and Catarrh Quickly

One Disease Held Sway for 15 Years And Other for 25; Former Suffered Back On The Job

MR. JOE LAZARUS

"I can hardly believe I am the well man I am today," said Mr. Joe Lazarus, of Assyria Center, near Battle Creek, Michigan. "I suffered 25 years with catarrh and 15 years with rheumatism. My limbs, arms and shoulders were practically paralyzed. I was nearly dead from the catarrh, my head reared and buzzed, and vomiting spells, because of mucus dropping into my throat, were frequent."

"Four bottles of Konjola drove the rheumatism away, and now the catarrhal condition has totally disappeared. I am feeling fine for the first time in 25 years. Konjola put me back on the job again."

REARRANGING THE FURNITURE

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois

It is said of Chaucer, I believe, that when in his novels he gave his characters distinct and definite outlines, they seemed to get away from him to determine their own behavior and conduct. I am sure how much he tried to manage them, they seemed to have wills of their own and a destiny to work out in spite of all the author's attempts to make them have toward each other as he would have liked to have them.

I have sometimes felt that our furniture had something of these same human characteristics, and that when the various pieces were once settled in their respective corners of the house, no matter how determined we might be at times to bring about a rearrangement, the chairs and the tables and the settees, mingled in a short time to drift back again each into its own familiar corner, as if they knew by a sort of wooden intuition the most appropriate place for each particular piece.

When Nancy and I first settled down to housekeeping we had few rooms to be furnished, and only the minimum amount of furniture to place in them. There was a sleeping room and a sitting room which seemed to us right at any time with adjustment to be completely changed about, the one becoming the other. But Nancy and her six or seven women are wont to do and we proceeded to arrange our small bits of furniture. I was all the time thinking how much better it would be if the bedroom were used as a sitting room, and the sitting room as a bedroom.

We lived along for two or three months with things as they were, and then one evening Nancy was to be out for two or three hours, and I determined upon the rearrangement. Everything was to be changed, including the window curtains and the pictures on the wall. One of the fellows agreed to help me and we worked fast. Before Nancy got home the metamorphosis had been wrought. She was a little dazed when she first came in and looked around, and then together we looked the change over. I tried to think it was better, but it really wouldn't do at all. There wasn't a piece of furniture that wasn't lonesome for its old corner. The pieces stood out stiff and uncomfortable. There didn't seem to be an old friend anywhere. We couldn't stand the change a half hour, so we set to work, before we even went to bed, and moved every thing back into its old place.

Adaptability to new work and new conditions is too infrequently found in people. Like the furniture, we look awkward and out of place when we are moved to a new position. Hence, once found a corner or a convenient wall space into which we seem to fit it is often the wisest plan to stay there and to make the best of our position. The main thing is to find the proper corner, and then to let the furniture stay where it is put.

A Crowning Indignity
In the book of Matthew, we read "They put on Him a general's short tunic." Such an act was the height of irony. They dressed the Prince of Peace in the trappings of a Roman general and knew that it would never fit the Master.

And yet the crucifixion goes on. In every age, we have been doing the same senseless thing. If we remember, during the last war, we heard the phrase "Christ in khaki." And any man who saw anything of the actual fighting, knows that the Christ can never be put into khaki. Probably Dean Inge is right after all when he says, "The real gospel, if it were accepted, would pull up by the roots, not only militarism but its analogue in civil life, the desire to exploit other people for private gain. But it is not accepted. In fact, it would be very disturbing to most of us, if we were to strip away from the regal figure of Jesus everything foreign to Him and let Him stand out unadorned and undisciplined."

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Flight of Yancey and Williams Across Atlantic— Big Postal Deficit.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

ONCE more the Atlantic ocean has been conquered by American aviators. Capt. Lewis A. Yancey and Roger Q. Williams were the heroes of this achievement, having flown from Old Orchard Beach, Maine, to the vicinity of Santander, Spain. Though they fell short of their destination—Rome—by 900 miles the flight across the ocean was considered a great feat. It was made in the Bellanca monoplane Pathfinder in 3½ hours and except for about two hours the aircraft were unable to see the water because of dense fog. Headwinds exhausted their supply of gasoline and they were compelled to land on the Spanish coast just a little beyond the place where the French transatlantic plane Yellow Bird was forced down recently. Spanish officials and citizens gave them a hearty welcome and hunted up a supply of gasoline with which, next day, they completed their flight to Rome. They landed at the Littorio field there and the officials and people greeted them enthusiastically. Even Premier Mussolini was at the field to meet them, but as they were late in arriving he had left just before they landed and soon afterward received them at his residence. They were made the guests of the Italian government and treated royally.

The Chicago Tribune's amphibian plane "Twin" Bowler, which started from Chicago to blaze a route to Berlin via Greenland and Iceland, was held up for days in the Hudson Bay region and on the tip of Labrador by unfavorable weather conditions. As its pilots were in no special hurry they wisely declined to take long chances. At Fort Huron, the work of refueling, and the constant danger of being demolished by floating ice.

Two air-rail services between New York and Los Angeles were inaugurated last week. One carries passengers by the Pennsylvania railroad to Columbus, Ohio, and thence by plane to the California city. The scheduled time for the trip is 14 hours. The other route is by the New York Central to Chicago, by the Santa Fe or the Alton to Kansas City, and from there on by airplane to Los Angeles, with a scheduled time of 40 hours. The services started from both ends of the routes.

DORNIER works in Germany have just completed a seaplane so huge that it makes even the Zeppelin gas in amazement. It is destined to carry 100 passengers and is said to be three times the size of the big American NC-4. It has three decks and a navigating bridge for the crew. The pilots, according to Doctor Dornier, the designer, will have nothing to do with the motors, but simply sit on the glass-encased bridge carrying out the captain's instructions. The mechanics will be directed by the chief engineer. Should half the motors fail simultaneously the plane can continue its flight with the crew floating the damage while the pilot calmly remains at his post. The constructors are convinced the ship, with its inch-thick sides, will be able to ride indefinitely in the heavy Atlantic sea.

DURING naval maneuvers in the Irish sea the British submarine H-47, a small vessel, collided with the big submarine L-12 and sank in 300 feet, carrying all but two of the crew of 23 men. Two men were lost from the larger craft. Of course steps to secure the imprisoned men were undertaken at once, but the depth and bad weather made them unavailing. The wreck was located and towed to communicate with the crew of the H-47 by radio. The crew was rescued and no serious loss was heard.

PROTESTS against the rates proposed in the house for the proposed new tariff on imports from the United States have been submitted to the senate finance committee, which is laboring over the measure during the congressional recess.

Denmark's protest centers principally on the new rates on hides, skins, cement, bricks, leathers, and chemicals; France's, on the general tariff situation and the proposed trade treaty; Italy's, on virtually every commodity imported from that country; Netherlands, on diamonds, bulbs, strawboard; Spain's, cork and peppers; Switzerland's, watches and embroidery; Great Britain's, wool and glue; Mexico's, live stock and vegetables, and Uruguay's, meats.

HAVE you one of these? was the query heard all over the country on Wednesday, and the question would display one of the new small-sized bills, the issuance of which began on that day. Some of the recipients of these little bills objected to them, and for a time the bank employees had trouble with the currency until their fingertips became accustomed to it. Treasury officials hope the new bills will be found more convenient and will reduce the danger of counterfeiting. Of those that have been put out the $1 bill bears the portrait of Washington; $2, Jefferson; $5, Lincoln; $10, Hamilton; $20, Jackson; and $50, Grant. In each case the back embellishment is appropriate.

PRESIDENT HOOVER is said to be considerably disturbed by a report from Postmaster General Brown indicating that the Post-Office department faces the possibility of a deficit of $187,000,000 for the year 1929. The annual losses have risen from $18,000,000 in 1924 to this huge sum, which includes $42,000,000, which the department must pay to railroads as the result of a decision of the court of claims. Mr. Hoover has ordered an exhaustive survey of the entire postal Service to determine the cause of the big losses.

One step which could be taken by the President without legislation and in advance of completion of the survey would be a reduction in the contract price for transportation of air mail and a relative increase in air mail rates. In this quarter it was said he would be urged to consider the contention that modernization of the Post-Office department's accounting methods would wipe out a large portion of the deficit.

Under the present system, the Post-Office department is required by law to handle hundreds of thousands of tons of congressional "franked" and departmental "free" mail matter annually. All of it must be accorded first-class handling and the system does not permit the department to take credit for the free service in its accounting.

PREMIER POINCARÉ'S great battle for political life began with the opening of the debate in the French parliament over the ratification of the debt agreements with the United States and Great Britain. If the chamber of deputies refuses to ratify, as Poincaré demands, the government must resign. The premier insists there must be no reservations, but the foreign relations committee voted for the insertion of a declaration that France never should be called on to pay more than she receives in reparations from Germany. The opposition also favors a reservation providing for a moratorium whenever the capacity of France to pay is not equal to the installments due under the debt record. The ultra-nationalist group in the chamber, the strongest foe to ratification in any form, refused to delegate Louis Marin, who has been their leader, as their representative in the discussions, and thus has taken to mean that they had decided to support Poincaré. In that case, it was predicted, the premier would resign.

The premier would resign to make a small majority and the ratification would be signed by August 1. Premier Poincaré aims at ratification outright by decree, thus maintaining the principle of France's good faith in paying up its debts. Then he hopes to get the chamber's approval for a separate bill embodying reservations, the principal among which is the clause making France's payments to America dependent on Germany's payments to France.

Frenchmen are reported to be concerned over the plan for a conference on August 10 to put into operation the Young plan for reparations, guardedly approving the British view that there should be but one conference at which the ministers and experts could deal simultaneously with all political as well as economic and financial issues. But France still thinks the conference should not be held in London.

Hugh Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium, had another conference in London with Ambassador Davies on the subject of naval disarmament, but no further announcements were made. The British Labor government, it was said, intends to make severe cuts in the naval program adopted by the last government, possibly discontinuing work on the construction of six submarines and other war vessels.

RUMANIAN officials uncovered a plot to overthrow the present government of that exorbitant country and possibly to establish a military dictatorship. Numerous arrests were made and documents were seized that, it was said, were signed "In the name of his majesty, King Carol II." In dividing that the exiled prince was aware of the conspiracy and had given his consent to it.

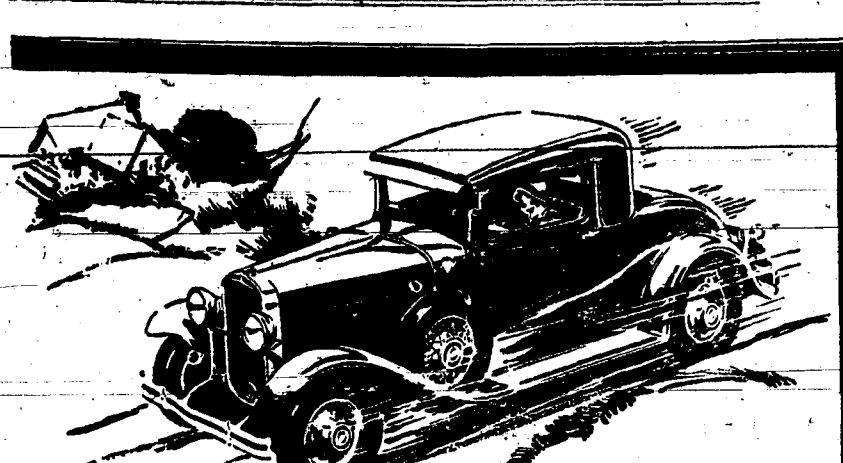

RUPTURE between Nationalist China and Soviet Russia is seen as the certain result of a renewal of the old feud concerning control of the Manchurian unit of the Trans-Siberian railway station. The governor of the province of Heilongjiang, a Soviet official and employees of the Chinese Eastern railway and promptly deported 37 of them across the Siberian border. Chinese directors replaced the Russians. Among those arrested were the Russian vice-director of railways and the director of the trading commission. All Russian banking and trading operations in Harbin were closed. This action by the Chinese follows the recent raid on the Russian consulate general at Harbin which uncovered evidence that Russian agents and other Soviet agencies were spreading Communist propaganda designed to disrupt Chinese unity.

SOMETHING of a sensation was created when customs officials in San Francisco seized and broke open the baggage of Mrs. Ying Kuo, wife of the Chinese vice consul in that city, on her arrival from China, and took option valued at a million dollars from her seven trunks and four suitcases. The search of the baggage, which Mrs. Kuo's attorneys said violated diplomatic rights, was conducted by permission of the State department. At this writing it has not been decided what action to take against the woman and her husband.

Mrs. Kuo said the contents of the trunks were the property of friends in China, who influenced her to use her diplomatic privileges to bring baggage into this country. She understood at the time, she declared, the baggage contained "presents" for friends of her friends in this country.

NEW ORLEANS has been struggling with a bad street car strike. In riotous clashes with the police several of the strike sympathizers have been killed and many hurt, and cars and other property have been destroyed. The street car company obtained a federal court injunction against the strikers and the United States marshal swore in and armed 250 deputies to guard the company's properties. Both government and civic conciliators were busy trying to settle the affair. The men offered to return to work if the company would recognize their union and pay contracts were made, and the company said the workers could have their jobs as individuals.

ARE YOU A FLYING JACKASS?

By Erwin Greer
(President Greer College, Chicago, Ill.)

The ship, its wheels catching the top of the hangar, nosed down and then slid to a crashing stop on its back. But, strange to say, the pilot wasn't hurt.

"It isn't everybody who can do a fool stunt like that," voiced an on-looker. "Get the trophy—we'll initiate him into the Society of Flying Jackasses."

Wherever the unfortunate lieutenant was presented with a trophy—a silver loving cup, on which his name is added to the list of flyers who have miraculously lived through dumb-bell maneuvers.

This club is—at Wright Field, Kelly Field has a similar one. Civilian flyers have their "unwritten clubs"; too. The Caterpillar club, so-called because it is composed of flyers who have had to jump in a parachute to save their lives, has little short of a hundred members today. Charles Lindbergh is a four-time member, having had to jump four times to save his life.

The men who are in commercial aviation have many tales of incidents paralleling the Flying Jackass and Dumb-bell exploits.

One pursuit pilot at Kelly recently was flying alone above the field. Feeling frisky, and wishing to engage in a sham battle, he selected as his opposing "plane" a darkie plodding along on muleback. Nosing his ship down for a third time, he leveled off. This time he was closer than ever, and the screaming flying wires sounded like a fire siren.

Terrified, the darkie "took to his parachute" as the Dumb-bell Citation reads—but the mule elevated his rear and let fly at the prop. This was something the pilot had not counted on. The heels of the mule sent the prop one direction, the landing gear the other. The ship was wrecked. The pilot, unharmed, is now a member of the Dumb-bell club. Why not write me your experiences, flyers?

When Won Wager
In Breton there is a popular legend that the wren once claimed to be king of birds because it could mount up higher than the eagle. When the competition began between them, the wren flew on the eagle's back and thus soared higher, and so won the contest.

GOSSIP in Washington concerning President Hoover's selection for ambassadorship is revived. The latest is that of John N. Willys of Toledo, automobile manufacturer, will be given the post in Rome. It was admitted at the White House that Dr. Hubert Work, retiring chairman of the Republican national committee, has been offered the place of ambassador to Japan, and no one doubts that Senator Edgar of New Jersey is to be ambassador to France. The new ambassador to Spain will be sent to Madrid and Berlin.

FREE CHEST CLINIC FRI. AUG 2ND

Opportunity for a free chest examination will be given the residents of Crawford county on August 2, when the Michigan Tuberculosis Association will conduct a clinic at Grayling, Michigan. Miss Ruth Elwell is in the county at present making arrangements for the clinic.

The examinations, which will be given without charge to the patients, are financed entirely by funds raised in the annual sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals.

Calling attention to the early danger signs of tuberculosis, the Michigan Tuberculosis Association warns that only through early discovery can early recovery from the disease be insured. The following symptoms of the disease are given as danger signals that should lead to a thorough chest examination: Unexplained loss of strength or weight, too easily tired, afternoon fever, indigestion or lack of appetite, and a cough that does not yield to the usual methods of treatment.

Records show that a large majority of the cases of tuberculosis diagnosed in chest clinics come from families where some member has had the disease. Special attention will therefore be given in the coming clinic to persons who have had prolonged contact with a case of tuberculosis.

SUGGEST PACKAGED MEATS FOR CAMPING

July and August bring their call to woods and mountains and stream and of course those who plan a camping trip must plan for the supplies. Since it is often impossible to obtain fresh meat, the various packaged meats find a prominent place on the list of food stuffs.

The National Live Stock and Meat Board suggests that the vacationist will find the cheap fare will have variety if these are in the larder.

A whole ham and a side of bacon, for what would a camping trip mean if one could not start the day with the fragrant order of one or the other mingled with the woody smoke of the camp fire.

Frankfurters, too, for broiling over the embers just as the sun goes down. And among others minced ham for sandwiches, corned beef, pickled tongue, or even a stew in the can, all ready to be heated.

TO CHECK NIGHT HUNTING

The meanest form of poaching with which the conservation department has had to deal has developed during the past few years, and has been brought about by the accessibility to automobile travel of the side roads of the upper peninsula. It is the growing practice of slipping quietly along these roads after dark during the late summer and spotlighting deer. The public should know that this form of poaching is generally practiced and not confined to any one class of people, says Director George R. Hogarth.

The law enforcement division of the department is planning drastic action against this practice during the coming months. Six to eight squads of men well posted in the methods used by these night hunters, and equipped with everything necessary to check them, will be turned loose in the upper peninsula with orders to confiscate any automobile, guns, or other equipment found in use by the poachers, and to bring the offenders to justice.
